

The image displays a large grid of 24 columns and 28 rows, organized into three distinct sections. Each section is separated from the others by a horizontal dashed line. Within each section, the rows alternate between white and light blue shading, starting with a white row at the top of the section. The grid is designed for use as an organizer, with the dashed lines and scissors icons on the right side indicating where to cut out individual units.